Horrible Diseases.

many thousands of persons, both are there who are suffering out a from the effects of secret indulgences has absorbed into the system! Look at the emaciated and ill-featured faces and the constitutions already half undermined by the fatal effects of marriage or the enjoyment of the horrid situation thousands suffer until death Come at once. Let persons guardians, friends, or those who are suffering from the pernicious effects of private diseases his especial assistance is certain to cure, the most inveterate cases of mercury or any injurious drugs taken into the system. Those who are interested in the welfare of their children, of the many pretended doctors now publishing their skill in curing the unwary, should ever remember that the services of eminent physicians from Europe and America. Be therefore careful and make sure that you may fall into the hands of Seminal Weakness.

Is the unfortunate consequence of self-abuse as many fatal vice or depraved sexual indulgence, is followed by the youth of both sexes to an extent producing with unerring certainty the following train of morbid symptoms viz. Nervousness, dimness of sight, loss of muscular strength, confusion of ideas, pains in the back, seminal emissions, exhausting drains, and all the evils arising from the secret habits of youth, destroying both mind and body, unfitting the sufferer for either business or society. Those terrible and destructive practices are too frequently followed by the most melancholy consequences, insanity, consumption, epilepsy, and death. Who can say that they are not startled sometimes by a sudden palpitation of the heart, frequent blushes, pimples on the face, a wandering of the eyes, and frequently a prematurely old appearance. Nocturnal emissions, indulged in, are sure to undermine the constitution, and destroy both mind and body. Those who have committed this error, and are conscious of its destructive consequences, such as indolence, timidity, nervousness, trembling of the hands, dimness of sight, dizziness, wakefulness, pimples on the face, aversion to society, self-distrust, love of solitude, etc., are warned that nothing but a thorough course of medicine can eradicate the disease from the system. Therefore, delay not a moment, but apply immediately to some person who has had experience in these diseases, and who understands thoroughly their nature and treatment. Many persons suffer for years from the secret habits of youth, without even dreaming of the cause of their declining health, such as nervousness, debility, universal lassitude, pains in the head, dimness of sight, loss of memory, confusion of ideas, aversion to society, loss of energy, etc., when, by a proper course of treatment, a perfect cure may be effected, and the patient restored to the full enjoyment of health and happiness. Marriage is recommended to those only who are entirely cured, as the consequences of an infected wife are frightful to contemplate.

Married Men,

who contemplate marriage, who are sensible of any of the above infirmities in themselves, should not delay a moment, but apply immediately for advice, and have the disease eradicated from the system, as they owe it to their wives and children to do so, as they cannot be happy in the married state while the disease exists in either party. Those who have injured themselves by private indulgence, and who may have committed excesses in maturer years, and are now suffering from the effects of those habits, should consult immediately, before it is too late.

Caution to the Unfortunate

George William Curtis' Oration

LEXINGTON, April 19.—Following is a summary of the oration delivered to-day by George William Curtis at the centennial celebration. We are fortunate, said he, that we behold this day the heavens beaming brightly over us. Earth blossoms with renewed life, and our hearts beat joyfully together with one emotion of filial gratitude and patriotic exultation. Citizens of a great free and prosperous country, we come together to honor our fathers who on this spot, and on this day one hundred years ago, made the first draw for independence. Here beneath the hills they trod, by the peaceful river on whose shores they dwelt, amidst fields that they sowed and reaped, they were slaughtered. Remembering their valor we come to tell their story to it ourselves by their lofty example, to know if we are their worthy children, and standing reverently on this hallowed ground, we stand before God and each other as the words of him upon whom in our day the spirit of the revolutionary fathers visibly descended that the government of the people, by the people shall not perish from the earth. This ancient town with its neighbors to share its glory has never failed feelingly to commemorate the great day of history. Fifty years ago when the Concord soldiers were still living, 25 years ago when still alive venerable survivors inspired with prayer eloquence and song they recalled the story of the fight. Every living link of the generation has been broken. Great events and a mightier struggle have absorbed our own generation. Yet we who stand here to-day have a sympathy with the men who held North bridge, which was not possessed by those who preceded us here which earlier celebrations could not know. With them the war was a name; a tradition.

Another Ulceration in Louisiana Politics.

NEW ORLEANS April 19.—Much discussion and excitement was produced in political circles to-day by a report, which proved to be correct, that the senators had agreed to seat in the house a Kleinmer and Felix Voorhies of St. Landry, G. L. Collins of St. Helena and G. B. Burke of Caddo, and that Messrs. Tom Boyd and Edmund Flood were elected by the returning board in place of Marcinet, Rochieu Florist and Richard Republicans who were seated in the senate with the withdrawal of the Democratic senators on Monday. The Conservatives contend that all the Democratic senators returned by the board were an order to be seated while the Republicans contend that these four men were not to be admitted. Marshal Packard said to day that if the four Republicans were ousted the Senate would adjourn for three days and if at the end of that time they were not reinstated the senate would adjourn sine die, leaving those men will giving the Conservatives a majority on joint ballot. Another political crisis is imminent as there seems to be no doubt about the seating of the conservative members to-day or Wednesday.

THE TILTON-BEECHER TRIAL.

General Items in the Trial.

NEW YORK April 19.—The Beecher trial was resumed to-day. Fullerton and Beach were present. Several witnesses are still to be examined for the defence, and counsel refuse to employ their names. Beecher's lawyers held a long private consultation last night. Beecher's counsel refuse to say whether Mrs. Tilton will be called or not. Cleveland will be the next witness after Beecher.

NEW YORK April 19.—The Beecher trial was resumed to-day. Fullerton and Beach were both present.

Beecher's Cross-Examination

To-day Fullerton showed witness the letters of Mrs Tilton known as the next binding letter and spring letter, which he identified. Beecher then asked witness if Mrs. T had not taken the figures of the coming of spring and the singing of birds and the flowers from the most Mont Beecher's own novel of "Norwood" where these figures are employed in order that Beecher might understand them as in that book where the song of a bird is associated with a love letter and next binding letter preceded as concealing love. Witness said he did not remember employing these expressions while writing the book, but he might have done it. He did not think Mrs. T took the language from that source and he gave his own interpretation of it, saying that she was happy that a reconciliation had been effected.

Fullerton questioned witness at great length as to the letter wherein he informs Mrs Tilton that he is going to New Haven, also about Mrs Morse's letter calling him her Dear son.

Witness said he thought he would go to New Haven to cause he thought it would be of great interest to her and Mrs Morse's probably to read that expression because he had formerly told her to consult with him as if he were her son.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Same Old Accounts Called Up

WASHINGTON April 19.—In reply to a circular letter from the chief of ordnance U S Army addressed to the Governors of the different States asking for a statement as to a portion of the arms equipments etc. now in possession of the States, it is shown that as early as 1792 Congress appropriated $800 000 to aid in ensuring the militia and which sums charged against them. The Governor of California is the first to respond. Call or his is now awaiting to be returned to the United States for the above account $154 000. The statement of the Governor shows there is now in the possession of the state authorities, guns equipments etc amounting to $200 000 which leaves a balance to the credit of the State of $46 000. This account will have to be adjusted before the commander of the Benicia arsenal to whom instructions have this day been forwarded regarding the settlement. When a final settlement will be had there seems to be no doubt in the minds of the authorities here that the United States will be indebted to the State of California more than $20 000 for which new arms of the most approved pattern are to be furnished the State at a cost of about $18 each. The instructions sent to the commander of Benicia arsenal contemplate a speedy informal settlement of this question on the basis of the statement published the ordnance department by the governor.

It is expected that the Pacific coast stations will be completed before the end of the present year.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE

Germany and Belgium.

LONDON April 19.—In the House of Commons to-night in reply to a question put by Mr O'Reilly, member for Langford County, Mr Disraeli said Prince Bismarck's long ago as January 1874 made a suggestion that England should join Russia in a strong remonstrance which the latter was compelled to make to Belgium against what he Bismarck described as a conspiracy of ultramontanes and Jesuit refugees against the peace of Germany. Granville, then minister of foreign affairs replied that he hoped Prince Bismarck would not press the matter beyond the limits of her constitutional institutions.

In the House of Lords, Russell asked Lord Derby whether the Prussian Belgian correspondence which terminated in the declaration of Prussia's friendship for the peace of Europe was endangered thereby.

Lord Derby replied that the text of Russia's first note fully justified Mr Disraeli in pronouncing it not a menace but a friendly communication. He had the assurance of the German ambassador which a hasty examination had given, that there was no reason to doubt that the second Russian note was conceived in a very friendly spirit and it would be premature to express an opinion of the merits of the question as England had not been applied to. At present he anticipated no danger and the controversy without unpleasantness. The British government valued the independence of Belgium and the peace of Europe, and was happy to think that neither were in danger.

The second German note to Belgium will be published to-morrow. It expresses regret at Belgium's refusal to comply with Germany's wishes and contains the statement that Belgium's refusal was because of the parliamentary difficulties in the way of compliance but it must at the same time be convinced that the first thing thing to be done is to recognize the necessity of submitting some modification of the treaties to examination into the difficulties is of secondary importance. The consideration of the means to prevent intrigues against neighboring States and the encouragement of friendly relations with the general peace and good relations, and it is to be hoped that Belgium will follow the example of Germany and Russia in alteration of her laws so thus giving fresh proof of the value she attaches to good relations with Germany. Should this effort fail the publio view of the question will nevertheless be declared and an understanding will be brought about between all the interested States. Germany has not sought to interfere with Belgium's international affairs. Her object has been to prevent foreign interference in her own. The note concludes with a reference to the special obligations Belgium is under to the guaranteeing powers on account of her neutral position.

BERLIN, April 20.—The National Gazette asserts that Austria and Russia will support Germany in her demands on Belgium. The lower House of the Prussian Diet has passed a bill abrogating those clauses of the constitution which allow the independent administration of ecclesiastical affairs the unimpeded intercourse of religious societies with their superiors and the freedom of clerical appointments.

The sheriff, with Wm Spencer, James Knapp, F J McWorthy with shovels and picks returned to where the ground was found dug up and digging, found the limb of a human being. Further up the ravine, they found the right arm. Still further up near the bluff, they found the human body minus the arms legs and head. They resumed their search, and going near the spot where the arm was dug up dis covered the head and some parts of the murdered man's clothing. Mr McWorthy readily recognizing the head as the head of N Sharp, the missing man. Further search was made but they could find nothing more. The remains were gathered together and buried. Sheriff Nash arrived at Winnemucca this morning with the prisoner heavily ironed. He is about thirty years of age. He stoutly denies all knowledge of the murder, although it is said he had the murdered man's boots on.

A Horrible Affray—A Woman Brutally Beaten and Her Sons Mortally Wounded

JACKSONVILLE April 20.—On Sunday after noon the 18th inst a horrible affray occurred some five miles east of Jacksonville on or near the old stage road as follows: Two families named respectively Doty and Johnson had a long standing feud which culminated in open warfare, resulting in the latter being driven from the premises. Since that time the Dotys have been living in a house on the premises of Johnson. On Sunday morning Mrs Johnson who by the way is a widow lady with quite a large family, had occasion to visit one of her neighbors and in doing so passed through her neighbor Doty's field, where it seems, he had to bidden her to go. Doty seeing her pass prepared himself for her return in the evening and as she came along a general fight seems to have taken place between Mrs Johnson and Mr Doty. Mrs Johnson getting the worst of it was left senseless on the ground bearing the marks of heavy blows with a club over the head. Her two boys Thomas and Brooks learning of the situation of their mother started to her assistance, and while on their way were met by Mr Doty when a fight ensued with guns and revolvers which resulted in mortally wounding both of the Johnson boys. Thomas is grown will be Brooks is only about fourteen years old. It is thought that Mrs Johnson will recover but both boys are pronounced by their attending physicians as beyond hope. Doty is laying in jail awaiting his examination. The people are greatly excited over the affair.

THE EMPRESS EUGENIE

OLIVE HARPER INTERVIEWS THE FRENCH EXILE IN BED—A HIGHLY INTERESTING CHAT

[Olive Harper's London Correspondence with the New York Graphic.]

Camden House is a low wide structure with French windows that open out on the lawn. I am not sure, but it seems to me that it is all on the ground floor. I did not see any staircase nor do I recollect of having seen any upstairs windows. The house is completely embowered with trees.

Reaching the door I descended a sedan by a solemn footman, dressed in deep mourning with a large crape bow report his arms. The carriages can drive up to the very door and you enter at once in a small dark oak hall where the floor is bare polished wood. There are two or three large cases of solid looking wood in the hall carved in fantastic patterns that might be sideboards or tombs. Turning to the left, the solemn footman ushered me through two heavy doors placed about a foot apart into the reception room. Somehow when one thinks of a king or a Queen or any one having to do with royalty one thinks immediately of gorgeous displays and elegant surroundings but you become undeceived on seeing the reception room of the Empress Eugenie.

The room is some eighteen feet square and the ceiling is high. One window opens out upon the lawn dressed with chintz curtains. A large round table stands in the center with an ordinary red cover. A portfolio lay open on it. There were a dozen old fashioned chairs covered with faded chintz, and one easy chair close to the wide open chimney, where a bright wood fire burned, and these, with one fire screen completed the furniture of the room. Two paintings hung one beside the fireplace and over the easy chair, represent in an old fashioned scene, where the dance was at its height, and where each face is one well known in history. The other hung so in the shade I could not see it.

While making this survey of the barely furnished room and its comfortless aspect the door opposite me in the corner by the chimney, opened and the Countess de Clary came in and saluted me seating me and herself beside me began to speak in French. She is a small and not over handsome woman but with a very intelligent and pleasing face. She is very various in her accomplishments had asked me some fifty different questions. I waited for I thought if her Majesty wished to see me it was not my place to hurry her, and I hardly knew if I should ask for her, or wait for her to send for me anyhow. After awhile the countess said

"You would like to see her Majesty?

I replied that I had come with that hope and then smiling down on me out the same door and the Duchess of Malakoff and her pretty daughter came in and chatted a few moments. The most of their conversation was that they did not like England—it is too triste and cold and foggy. They complimented me on the impression my little attention and verses had made upon her Majesty.

ROYALTY RECEIVING AN AMERICAN IN BED

Presently the Countess de Clary came and told me that her Majesty, being slightly indisposed, had kept her bed that day but if I would excuse her being in bed she would receive me there. I followed through a hall room furnished in off-hand manner where Majesty sits most of her time at work embroidering or reading or writing in a rather larger room where her Majesty lay in bed. A bright fire made the room look cheerful and pleasant. The bed is a much nicer piece of furniture than anything else in the house, and is handsomely hung with silk curtains. Her Majesty lay there among the pillows, decked with a dainty little white lace cap with blue ribbons and a handsome night dress each with lace and embroidery and tied at the throat with a blue tie. A tiny table held a cup of chocolate and a silver tray of bonbons while another little table held a draught board, with the men in position which showed that she had been playing.

Her Majesty, smiled on seeing me and told me to be seated and then beg in speaking, saying that she had been very much touched by my delicate flattery.

I seated myself before her and remarked well each trait in her still lovely visage the while she spoke. She made two or three remarks upon the disagreeable weather and finally asked me why I, being an American felt such an interest in things not pertaining to a republic. I told her that as a woman I knew there are two worlds more deeply ingrained in the love of form of government—sympathy for misfortune and admiration for courage and true womanhood.

She smiled, and then said

"You have just come through France, you say what do you think of France as a republic?"

I replied that although France was apparently successful now that it was only from the surface, and that to really it was a failure that Frenchmen are not made of the right stuff for Republicans. They lack that hard purpose and firmness of character that our Republicans have, and that some lightness of nature does not let them study to the foundation the principles they advocate and which if they understood they would not wish. If they entail too many sacrifices in a word they are not willing to pay and so the affair fails. They try to ever be Republicans and if the men are not how can the country be a republic?

Her Majesty looked thoughtful and finally said

So you think France cannot exist as a republic?"

I replied, No."

"But I would like to understand why France cannot be a republic when we all see that America is?"

I replied that France could be a republic were it not that her people are not Republicans in any sense of the word. Also a republic is born not made. Our Republicans have molded our government went into a builder ness with an axe in hand, and hewed out and built up, little by little that structure that even monarchs admire. No people who have always loved and revered one ruler or another can ever bow to an impersonal vague thing that seems to them a bare fact shorn of all the pomp and pageant and of the presence of royalty. Frenchmen's hearts crave beauty and glitter—an idol for which to die. There is a certain real, beautiful and glorious actuality that they can see and touch in a number full of men like themselves who present in one of the qualities which charm his heart.

Her Majesty looked at the Countess de Clary and smilingly said

I never heard this question better argued. Then she said

"What do you think of my son the Prince Imperial? Do you think the people love him?"

I replied, all I had ever heard speak had spoken of him in terms of affection both in England and France as well as wherever I had been.

"Have we many friends in America?"

I told her that I thought all Americans were her friends, perhaps now more than ever.

The Americans are good people and I always liked them she said thoughtfully then rising rang her elbow she said earnestly

"The Prince my son will soon reach his majority and then all his studies at Woolwich. Do you not think that will have much influence in France in his favor?"

I replied that it undoubtedly would.

"Ah well he is not to retain it all ways" she sighed "and he loves his country and his people, and wishes them well and so do I."

Then he changed the conversation and asked me a few personal questions as to my writing and when I told her that I was now publishing three books she requested that I should send her a copy of each. I asked permission to dedicate a volume of poems to her but she told me that she had refused so many like requests that she could not make an exception although she would gladly do so. Her Majesty also asked many questions about forms, all of which I answered as a true daughter of that blessed land ought to, and then was permitted to return. On going out of the door of the bedroom I turned to take a last look of the beautiful Empress who had carried all hearts by storm be they kings or peasants. She lay back there her rich golden hair loosely caught under the tiny coquettish bit of lace and ribbon, the fair fullness of shoulders and bust half revealed through the embroidery on her night-dress, and the tower like strength of her round white neck made more marked by the blue tie. The soft white hands are as plump and dimpled as those of a baby and her complexion is still delightfully clear and fine. The profile is clear cut and of a high cast of beauty and her mouth is a marvel of sweetness—and sadness, except when she smiles. She bade me au revoir instead of good by and so some day I hope to pass an other hour with the queenliest Queen of all—the ex Empress of France.

On leaving her room the Lady of Honor had some refreshment brought, and I was placed in my hand a present from her Majesty which, it is needly to say I shall keep as long as I live.

Back again to the station, where some one waited for me impatiently back to London to take the train for Southend, where I remain till further notice.

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD

[From the Philadelphia Enquirer March 22.]

The last annual report of the Union Pacific Railroad Company dated March 10, 1875 and just given to the public, throws a good deal of light on the transcontinental railroads. That report, signed by the president and sec

The Daily Oregonian.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, APRIL 21, 1875.

THE FEDERAL APPOINTMENTS AND THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

A writer in the Record, over the signature "Republican," reviews the appointments of Federal officers procured by Senator Hipple in a vein which, though just in most of the cases particularized, is very severe. The writer says:

Your (the Record's) allusion to Senator Mitchell and his appointments does not strike me as explicit enough without direct explanation, and as it is a matter that vitally affects the party and interests every member of it, I ask leave to review his action, and my review will go far to prove what you assert, that the Republican influence in Oregon is weakened by his appointments. This is true, because every party must be held responsible for the men it places in office, and cannot shirk the responsibility. If we sanction these appointees by silence, then the party will suffer by them; if we show that Senator Mitchell's private interests are represented by them, and not the party at large, we may relieve the party of at least a portion of the obloquy that attaches thereto.

It was Senator Mitchell's act to remove Dr. Wilson Bowlby from the office of collector of internal revenue and place therein one of his personal following, O. B. Gibson. Dr. Bowlby was one of the fathers of Republicanism in Oregon, and it is not too much to say that no man in our State did more than he to lend dignity and give success to the party here. He was sacrificed by Mitchell's intrigues in 1866, and he was removed to give place to a man who had no brains to work with if he desired to work, and whose influence was at most within the limits of a ward politician's beat in the city of Portland.—Bowlby's administration was competent and honest, while Gibson's was a failure, that led to his resignation, which is a mild way of putting it.

And then, after very general sketch of Stitzel, Carr and some others, he bestows this pleasant notice on one of the Bens:

Among the Bens, last but not least, we find recorded the name of Simpson. In the legislature of 1872 Ben. Simpson marshaled the Mitchell phalanx and pushed him through to the Senate. When you talk about unscrupulous politicians, do you include Simpson? When you speak of men the people don't honor, do you include our Ben? It is not easy to do justice to such sublime impudence; such brazen cheek, such incorruptible Republicanism as Ben has. True, he went with Handy Andy, and backed Nesmith for the U. S. Senate in '66. True, he goes for Ben Simpson first, but doesn't he always go for Mitchell second? Of course he does, and virtuous men, who have records of unspotted honor, but are less creatures of mere partisanship and can't use money to carry elections, may as well stand aside to let Simpson be surveyor general.

Our worthy U.S. district attorney comes in for complimentary mention, and T. R. Harrison, late of Yamhill and especially well known in the neighborhood of Amity, is tendered in a manner that no doubt makes him blush, after which the reader is favored with what, to every Oregonian, is a paragraph of "true inwardness," with relation to the very last offspring of Hipple's Senatorial loins, as follows:

Scratch your heads now, and rub up your memories, while I talk about Towler! Who is Towler? He is now a U.S. paymaster, appointed from Oregon.—What was he? He was a person Ben Holladay, kept by him to be useful, to do his chores and run his errands—a cross between a major-domo and a head-messenger, who has to be provided for, as Ben Holladay is the leading Republican of Oregon. Towler is paymaster, while we have one-legged veterans like Major George Williams who can wait and grow bald with such fellows as Dr. Towler stepping over their heads. Capt. N. B. Humphrey may stand and look on wondering how a man without a war record can climb so, and Roswell Lamson can stop for a living in Yamhill, while his exploits as a naval officer at Fort Fisher go unrewarded. There are many others who (Maj. W. P. Lord for instance,) were also deserving, and whose war record was honorable; some of them may be hungry and cold for all that, but Oregon Republicanism has sunk so low in Mitchell's hands that Ben Holladay's instruments must be given life positions, while the world looks on in scorn.

The marshalling of such an array of rottenness, unrelieved by a single appointment which, upon any presentation of the facts, could be claimed to have been made with an eye to the benefit of the public service, justifies the concluding paragraph of the article in the Record must be considered highly appropriate:

I have furnished cases enough in point" to point a moral and adorn a tale," and I leave the subject for honest men to ponder at their will. I will close with a single remark: No party can carry such appointments and command the confidence or respect of the community. A party the voters cannot respect they will not support. The time has come for the Republican party to "unload," or else the load will bury the party beyond hope of salvation.

THE RESOURCES OF EASTERN OREGON.

Attention has been directed to Western Oregon of late so much as to obscure in some measure the importance of the Eastern portion of the State. We were yesterday evening forcibly reminded of the unappreciated importance of that section of the State, by being shown by Hon. A. H. Brown a number of specimens of gold and silver quartz from different lodes, which show that Oregon has the most splendid mining resources, and only awaits the enterprise and capital necessary to develop them. The really valuable mines of Nevada—the "big bonanza"—are all confined to a very small space about Gold Hill, and from that little spot has come the millions that have made San Francisco a magic city that is proof against commercial collapses and financial crashes and panics. Oregon has as good mines and as big bonanzas, easier of access and in the midst of country rich in agricultural and pastoral resources, which, if once put in a fair way of development, would place her in the lead of California, and make her commercial metropolis one of the most thriving cities on the continent.

Our readers have become familiar with the Virtue mine near Baker City, which has been sending out its golden bricks for a long time. The Virtue mill had a small beginning, and can make no pretensions to equality with the great mills of Nevada, owned by San Francisco capitalists; but it has successfully opened one or more valuable mines, and is extending its operations constantly.

Then, there is the Rye valley mines, which have already been demonstrated to be rich in both gold and silver. There is a mill at Rye valley.

At Conner creek, also in Baker county, 40 miles from Baker City, is another splendid mine of gold quartz, the richness of which is already established by milling the rock.

At Ronen gulch near Baker City,—the McCloud brothers are working a gold-bearing "pocket ledge" in which the "pockets" are numerous and very rich. The specimen shown us from this ledge has $24 in gold in it, by specific gravity test, in an aggregate weight equivalent to $32.

Over in Grant county, Mr. Cabell is working a ledge of gold and silver, which in California would be the basis of more "big bonanza" excitement than a little. This rock assays $592 gold and $1,987 50 silver to the ton. The machinery with which this truly magnificent mine is worked is a little mill of inferior capacity.

Several other ledges, known to be rich in the precious metals and partially opened, are waiting for some one to take hold of them.

And besides the precious metals, rich mines of copper and cinnabar were discovered years ago in Grant county, which would prove sources of immense wealth if they were once well opened. There is no reason why Eastern Oregon may not in time become as famous as any other mining region in the world.

HOLDING MORE THAN ONE LUCRATIVE OFFICE AT THE SAME TIME.

PORTLAND, 20 April, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

It is the prevailing opinion in this community that a person is not permitted by law to hold two lucrative offices at the same time. Is there such a law? Does it apply to the case of Judge Denny, who is holding the offices of Police Judge and Collector of Internal Revenue? or does the fact that he has not yet qualified as disbursing officer, in connection with his collectorship prevent its application?

INQUIRER.

There is such a law as the writer refers to. It is a provision of the State Constitution which reads:

No person holding a lucrative office or appointment under the United States, or under this State, shall be eligible to a seat in the Legislative Assembly; nor shall any person hold more than one lucrative office at the same time, except as in this Constitution expressly permitted: provided, that officers in the militia, to which there is attached no salary, and the office of postmaster, where the compensation does not exceed one hundred dollars per annum, shall not be deemed lucrative.

The case of Judge Denny is not one in which it is "expressly permitted" to hold two lucrative offices, nor is it one of the cases specified in the section quoted, of an office not deemed lucrative. It would seem plain, then, that the holding of these two lucrative offices by the same person at the same time, is contrary to law, unless the failure to qualify as disbursing officer prevents the application of the law as suggested.

Does the failure to qualify as disbursing officer—if that is the name of the collateral office—take the care out of the law? That is just equivalent to asking if the qualification as collector is a nullity until supplemented by the qualification for the collateral office, and it is answered in the negative by the fact that Denny has taken possession of the office of collector and is now exercising that office, in pursuance of instructions from the head of the Treasury department. He is collector, and draws pay as collector. He holds the lucrative office of collector, whether he has fully qualified for the discharge of all the collateral and ex officio duties connected with the position or not; and that makes his holding on to the police judgeship unlawful. We scarcely believe Judge Denny himself will question the correctness of this view on giving the subject a little reflection.

ANOTHER PIONEER GONE.

We are called upon to record the departure of another one of Oregon's earliest settlers. Mr. Henry S. Aiken, who died at Astoria on Monday last, came to Oregon in 1847, and has been an inhabitant of Clatsop county ever since. He was born in England in 1818, but came to this country in his childhood, with his father, who settled in Illinois, whence the son came to Oregon. The deceased was a man of clear and sound understanding, and of generous impulses, and was a man of note in the locality of his residence,—a man to whom many people went for advice and assistance in business matters of a legal nature, and was always found to be a safe and wise counsellor. He leaves three children—a son and two daughters, his wife having died some years since. He was carried to his last resting place yesterday, with the honors of Freemasonry, of which order he was an old and cherished member.

We had long sustained intimate business and personal relations with Mr. Aiken, and it is with a feeling of deep sadness that we pen this brief obituary for we ever found him an honest and honorable business man, and an unselfish and faithful friend.

The Edinburgh Athenæum last July, among other book notices reviewed the "Edinburgh Educational Atlas and Geography," which had just been published by the Messrs. Johnston, of that city, and in the course of its remarks said, in substance, that the publishers were issuing as the work of Keith Johnston one that was not that of either Keith Johnston the first nor the second, but of a person unskilled in making an atlas. For this publication the Johnstons brought an action for damages against the publishers of the Athenæum, which has just ended in a verdict for plaintiff with damages at £5,000.

A Deer Lodge (Montana) paper says: "The long continuance of snow and the unusual amount of cold weather is beginning to tell on the herds of cattle. Feed is practically exhausted, and there is not much nutriment in the grass, even where it is accessible. Mr. Heath has exhausted his 700 tons of hay, and has driven his herd down toward lower Warm Springs. He lost, a few nights since, six head. The Beilenberg Brothers are losing a few head out of their bands, and from numerous herds we hear of losses. This is but the beginning. The prospect is not hopeful. Hay is only quoted at $70 per ton, but none can be bought. Murphy & Roach, this week, hauled hay 30 miles for their cattle at the mill. Cattle are getting very thin and meat poor. We are informed there are less than 250 head of fat cattle in the valley, an amount insufficient to supply the camps of the county three weeks. Some stock men have fed out this winter the surplus hay put up during the past six years and have about exhausted it. The hope is for an early spring, but early as it may come, it is not now possible to prevent heavy losses.

Missoula, it appears, has a very fair prospect of obtaining the establishment of a military post there this spring—the garrison to be one company of cavalry and one of infantry.

CITY.

REV. MISS CHAPIN.—Readers will doubtless remember the Rev. Miss Augusta Chapin, minister of the Universalist doctrine, who visited our city last summer from the [illegible] Miss Chapin occupied the pulpit of the Universarian church several times, and delivered a lecture at Masonic Hall. The reverend lady is now in Pittsburgh and has recently been interviewed by a Leader reporter. After giving a description of Miss Chapin's appearance, the reporter proceeds to furnish the substance of a conversation which ensued between himself and the lady. Among many queries propounded and answered we find the following: Have you been regularly ordained to preach? "I have. Have you a charge at the present time? "Yes; I have a charge in Lansing, Michigan." How long have you been ordained? "Sixteen—or about fourteen years. I preached some before I was ordained though. Altogether I have been engaged in missionary and ministerial work for sixteen years." Are you a native of Michigan? "No; but the West has been the principal field of my labors. I have been in charge of churches in Milwaukee and Iowa City, besides preaching in various other places. A short time since I traveled over the States of California and Oregon, preaching in San Francisco and other western cities. I like the West. It furnishes a more active field for ministerial work, as people have not got so deep in the ruts there. People have not got so deep in the ruts there as they are in the East. There seems to be more liberal sentiment among them. In addition to old customs. They seem more [illegible] West; there seems to be more energy, and so it gives one more to do."

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.—A regular meeting of the board of trustees of East Portland, was held on Monday evening. Present, a full board, with the exception of Mr. Purnett. A report was received from the committee on streets and public property, in regard to the Twelfth street bridge. The committee reported that the bridge had been completed in a substantial and workman-like manner, and recommended that the contracted price be paid for the structure. The report was adopted. A report was received from the committee on claims, recommending the payment of [illegible] Lawrence's claim, and adopted. A report was received from the committee on landings and wharves, fixing the line to which [illegible] might be extended into the Willamette river, between J and A streets. Adopted. An ordinance was passed levying a tax of $4 on each male inhabitant, to be applied to the repair of streets, during the present fiscal year. After auditing a few claims, the board adjourned.

LATE CAPT. RANDALL.—It was the expectation, and was so announced, that the remains of the late Capt. R. B. Randall would be brought down to this city for interment. The members of Hassalo Lodge, I. O. O. F., of which deceased was a member, had given instructions to have the body brought down. But it appears that other arrangements have been effected with reference to the disposal of the remains. Mr. Randall, we understand, was deeply attached to a lady with whom he became acquainted, who died several years ago at Umatilla. Since the death of the latter he had often expressed an earnest desire to be buried by her side. So frequently had he expressed that wish that his intimate friends, as soon as the body was recovered, would [illegible] water, and, in accordance with the deceased's desire, remains will be conveyed to Umatilla and [illegible] rest by the side of her whom he had loved, lost and mourned while living.

FOR THE SITKINE.—The Oregon Steamship Company have determined to run a boat on the Sitkine river the coming season, and are now giving the E. N. Coats a thorough refitting for that trade. She will be repainted, refurnished and stiffened up, and will be undoubtedly the finest and staunchest river boat north of the Columbia. Next Monday, the 26th inst., in company with the Gussie Telfair, she will leave Portland, and passing down the Columbia will go to Fort Wrangel, Sitka, etc. Those who contemplate a passage on the Sitkine to the Eldorado, will find the fine craft. She will be commanded by Capt. Geo. A. Pease, who can navigate any boat on water, from the high seas to the smallest creek.

PLANING THE HULL.—The steady but resistless encroachments of the waters of the river on the banks, has made times lively down at the boneyard. For a week past, a number of extra workmen have been engaged on the two new crafts, at present in course of construction there. The river has risen so rapidly that the carpenters have been compelled to labor incessantly—day, night, and, for a few days, so as to inclose the hulls before the water reaches the boats. The launching of these boats will take place soon.

GERMAN FAIR—RESULT.—Last evening the German Aid Society met and adopted the report of the financial committee. The footing up shows a net gain of $1,974, a pretty good sum considering the weather, as well as the fact that numerous affairs of a similar character had taken place during the season. The above amount will be placed in the fund which has been gradually increasing and the society took into consideration the project of building a hospital.

ARRESTED.—A brace of worthies—Hendrady and J. J. Mitchell—were arrested on Monday evening, charged with larceny. They had stolen a large and valuable gilded picture frame from some place and were endeavoring to sell it. When interrogated as to how they came in possession of the article, they failed to give a satisfactory explanation. Yesterday morning the case came up in police court, and was continued until this morning.

RAT-KILLING.—A few evenings since Mr. Farron, who is attached to the commissary department, slaughtered forty-five rats with a shotgun in one hour. A half a dozen "down" in a disabled condition, thus making the brief onslaught a decided success. Sergeant John was, after them, again [illegible] with what success we did not learn. Keep in the good work, and you may be the champion rat-killer yet, Mr. Farron.

THE STAGE.

Mr. G. Gottschalk, the baritone, and brother of the famous pianist, who accompanied Wieniawski here, after leaving San Francisco went to Europe and studied—an example of old-time associate Alfred Wilkie has recently followed—and now we have news of his successful debut as "Duco Alfonzo" in Cremona, in the opera of "Lucretia Borgia."

Frank Lee, a native of Philadelphia, and a member of the H. C. Lee family, of this city, noted died in San Francisco, of inflammation of the lungs, on April 6th, and was buried on the 10th. Young Lee has been very active in the ring on this coast, and was not without being one of the best still vaulters in the business. Deceased visited this State last fall with Warner's circus.

ORTHOGRAPHICAL.

A Chicago man thinks the worst speller ought to get the dictionary, and the winner should have a "wreath of sorrel, or some other garden sass, like them Greeks."

Our clerks have been puzzling their brains to learn the correct way to spell "Corsica," "bevel," "marlinespike," "adz," etc., and one rash fellow actually spelled "exaggeration," "eggs ageration." No show for such spellers at the Taylor street church this evening.

The Catholic Social Union met last evening for a brief "spell." Those who took part were floored so rapidly that the attempt was put down as a first-class failure, and they concluded to try again next Tuesday evening. In the meantime, there will be a general overhauling of spelling-books and dictionaries.

The very entertaining ladies of the East Portland Baptist Mission Sabbath School will give a spelling match at the Odd Fellows' Hall on Friday evening, April 23d. The Pacific Coast Speller will be used up first, then ice cream, cake and other dishes easy to get rid of. Admission twenty-five cents, to clear the voice of the organ of debt and furnish S. S. papers for the little folks. A cash prize of $2 50 will be presented to the champion speller. All are invited.

This evening there is to be a spell at the Taylor street M. E. church that will no doubt prove to be one of the most exciting of the course, if not more so. The match is to be between a delegation of the attorneys of our city and an equal number of printers, to be followed by a volunteer match as heretofore. A change is made in the text book for this occasion, Webster's common school dictionary taking the place of the Pacific Coast Speller. Refreshments will be furnished. For further particulars see advertisement.

The spelling matches are bringing to light all the curious and puzzling words in the unabridged dictionaries. At a recent match in Washington City, Professor Gallaudet, who engineered the affair, raked up such words as "asymptote," which means a line approaching a curve, but never reaching it, and "phyllotaxy," which is a botanical term for the arrangement of leaves and stems. But the knottiest thing of all was "syzygy," and, the best speller surrendered on it without discrediting himself. It is astronomical, and the definition of it is the point of an orbit, as of a moon or planet, at which it is in conjunction or opposition.

Since the spelling mania has reached this city, there has been considerable comment among the best orthographers, and the public generally, as to the proper method of conducting the contests. Some are in favor of using a dictionary, the propounder to select promiscuously from its pages. Others are in favor of adopting Webster's elementary, or Sander's Speller; and others again advocate the using of the Pacific Coast Speller. It has been suggested by some that the fairest and most practicable method to adopt is for the propounder to take a newspaper, or book and choose therefrom the words used in ordinary writing. Orthographists estimate that about 1,000 words are used in common writing, and from 400 to 500 in ordinary conversation. This, it appears to us, would be the best plan. Choosing those words most frequently employed in conversation and writing, would be not only impartial, affording the contestants an equal opportunity, but, would result in that which should never be overlooked in these contests—improvement. At the contest which took place in the vestry of the Baptist church on Monday evening, the Pacific Coast Speller and Henderson's Test Words were used. In the books mentioned, occurred a number of geographical names, principally those of towns situated along the Southern coast. These Spanish names are of extremely difficult orthography, the pronunciation of the name serving rather to confuse the mind than to convey the correct idea of how the word should be spelled. Among the words given out by the propounder occurred the following: "Guadalazara" and "Guavoxuato," which are extremely difficult to spell according to the manner in which they are pronounced. Fairness, it seems, would require that all words of Mexican origin be omitted. Such words are really orthographical puzzles, and a contest over them cannot result in any material improvement. Even the best Spanish authorities differ among themselves as to the correct pronunciation of many such words; and there are scarcely two Spaniards who pronounce Aztec words of any length in the same way.

Mr. Horne was the recipient of a most substantial benefit at New Market Theater last evening. From orchestra to gallery the auditorium was densely crowded with a fashionable assemblage. "School of Reform" and "Rag-Pickers of Paris" constituted the entertainment. In the former play, Mr. Horne appeared as "Bob Tyke," and in the latter as "Father Jean." Both pieces were rendered capitally and the support prompt and efficient.

A new smoke-stack has just been finished for the steamer California.

The smoke-stack of the tug Ben Holladay is receiving a coat of paint.

The O. S. N. Co.'s steamer Bonita will soon be ready to make the trial trip.

Several patients who have been confined in the insane asylum for different periods, have recently been discharged, entirely restored to their reason.

The draughtsmen employed at Gen. Michler's office, are busily engaged in the preparation of maps of the late surveys on San Juan and adjacent Islands.

About the 1st of May, thirty tons of castings—State capitol work—will be shipped to Salem from the Willamet works. It will be the first installment.

The building formerly occupied by the Bank of British Columbia, is undergoing a marked change. Dan. Holton, of the Cosmopolitan, will open a grand saloon, attached to which will be several rooms, to be fitted up in grand style.

Yesterday morning the tug Ben Holladay started down the river, having in tow the schooner Superior. This vessel will be left at Martin's Bluff to load with shaves and boards. The tug will tow the bark Rival from Rainier to Astoria.

The young man who tried to kiss his lady companion under the umbrella on Sunday, alas! did not know the "cole mine" was watching. When he got home he told his parents he had fallen into a mud-puddle—and they believed him!

COMPLIMENTARY CORRESPONDENCE.

The following correspondence appears in a late issue of the S. F. Post:

SAN FRANCISCO (Cal.), April 10, 1875.

Brigadier-General, George Crook, U. S. A., Lick House, San Francisco—GENERAL: The undersigned, in behalf of the people of the several States and Territories of the Pacific coast, desire to express in a public manner, their appreciation of the eminent services you have rendered in effectually establishing peace and rendering habitable a large section, the resources of which must eventually greatly redound to the benefit of our common country; we therefore tender, and beg acceptance, for yourself and staff of a dinner to be given in your honor at the Lick House in this city, on Monday, April 12, 1875, at half past 8 o'clock.

The communication is signed by the following gentlemen:

For California—J. Friedlander, Thomas H. Selby, Louis Sachs, Wm. Alvord.

For Oregon—B. Goldsmith, Wm. S. Ladd, A. C. Gibbs.

For Idaho—Peter Dean, Hill Beechy.

For Arizona—Wm. B. Hooper, A. E. Head, S. Silverberg.

For Washington Territory—Edw. S. Salomon.

General Crook responded in the following fitting and handsome terms:

LICK HOUSE, SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 10, 1875.

Gentlemen: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of current date, tendering myself and staff a dinner at the Lick House on Monday evening next, and requesting my acceptance of the same.

I had hoped to be en route to my new station on the evening of the day mentioned, but the unexpected delay in the arrival of the steamer upon which we shipped our baggage from Los Angeles makes it impossible for me to leave earlier than Tuesday morning, and I have, therefore, no reason for declining the intended honor other than a feeling that you have unduly magnified the importance of my humble services.

However, I have been so long associated with and am under so many obligations to the people of the Pacific coast, that I feel that any wish of theirs, when not incompatible with my military duties, should be my law, and, therefore, accept with pleasure your polite invitation, and will hold myself and staff at your command for the evening named. Please assure the gentlemen you represent that I am profoundly grateful for the high compliment expressed in your communication.

With great respect, your ob't servant,
GEORGE CROOK,
Brigadier General, U. S. Army.

To I. Friedlander, Thomas H. Selby, Louis Sachs, William Alvord, B. Goldsmith, Wm. S. Ladd, A. C. Gibbs, Peter Dean, Hill Beechy, Wm. B. Hooper, A. E. Head, S. Silverberg, Edward S. Salomon, committee.

The Spring time has come, and with it new Goods to our enterprising merchants. The styles are much changed in clothing, and the dull times have worked a change in prices too, so much so, that persons with limited means can invest liberally. J. KOHN, opposite National Bank, is among the first to introduce the latest styles from the Eastern markets. He has an immense stock which is well worth looking through. Call and see the new stock.

The observing man must have noted a change in the establishment of BECK & WALDMAN. The last steamer brought them quite a large invoice of Spring Styles, which they are having displayed for the inspection of their numerous customers. They will continue to offer the public the best bargains. As usual the stock of Youths' clothing is varied and parents may find many new things that will be sure to please. Drop in this evening.

Inquire Before You Determine.

Ask your druggist what HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR is doing in cases of severe cough and cold within his own personal knowledge, before you try it yourself. Inquire of him if he has ever known a medicine of its class as popular as that pure and agreeable vegetable preparation. Be governed by the facts he will state to you. We venture to say that there is not an apothecary in the country who will not endorse it as a specific for diseases of the lungs and throat.

PIKE'S TOOTH-ACHE DROPS—Cure in one minute

The Signs of Health.

Health invariable declares itself by visible signs. A person with a sallow, haggard visage and attenuated frame may declare that he is "in perfect health," but if he does, don't believe him, for he is not. His looks belie him, and his asservation is mere bravado. Few persons, except hypochondriacs, desire to be thought unwell. A fresh complexion, a clear leanness, indicate that their possessor enjoys good digestion, sound sleep and a vigorous circulation, three essentials of health which are fortunately not beyond the reach of invalids. The surest medium for their attainment is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which by purifying the blood banish sallowness, and by promoting perfect indigestion and sound sleep, keep the body well nourished, and impart to the face a placid expression indicative of a clear and unwearied mind. The Bitters are far more conducive to good looks than any cosmetic that ever numbugged the credulous.

Take it in Time. Coughs and colds will not wait. They are deceptive, and the patient often imagines himself better even when he has not used the proper treatment for cure. Attend to it at once! WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY is our oldest cure for these complaints.

HAIR, if not necessity, makes a Hair Dressing indispensable to many. The new "VIGOR," which DR. AYER'S laboratory issues, is one of the most delightful we have ever used. It restores not only the color, but gloss and luxuriance to faded and gray hair.

THE TERRITORIES.

A Nevada man wants to purchase 1,000 head of cattle in Walla Walla.

Hon. S. B. Dilly has been appointed auditor and recorder of Alturas county, Idaho, in place of Wm. Kelly, deceased.

A stone wall 20 feet high and 4 feet thick, is being built around the Colorado penitentiary and is to be completed in four years.

At present the grass is six inches high on the Walla Walla hills and stock is fattening rapidly. Cattle that three weeks ago were on the lift are now as gay and frolicsome as if they had never felt the want of a square meal in all their lives.

As an indication of the Idaho freighting business, George Baker and Robert Hubbs, of Owyhee, have bought five ox teams, consisting of fifty yoke, which they intend to run on the route between Winnemucca and Silver City this season.

Mr. R. L. Smalley informs the Statesman that the Touchet has overflowed its banks, and that the travel between Walla Walla and Wallula is likely to be interrupted. Mr. Schneebley's crossing the water has washed around the lower side of the bridge and made crossing at that place dangerous.

A fatal accident occurred to James Hawkenburger at Philipsburg, on the 22d ult., by the unexpected explosion of a giant powder cartridge, held in his hand. The explosion tore off the hand, forcing pieces of bone into various parts of his arm, face and thigh, from the effects of which he died in six hours.

There are a number of parties who are getting ready to leave Walla Walla for the mines in a week or two. They are mostly headed for Silver City, but there will be a representation of them both in North and South Idaho, as well as in the mines of Eastern Oregon.

Mr. Covington, of White Bluffs on the Columbia, was in Walla Walla the other day, and informed the Union that the winter has been very severe up there, causing the loss of a considerable portion of the stock. He says that the ground was covered with snow for 120 days, and that in coming down last week he had to travel through a considerable distance of snow.

A Montana paper says that Territory is credited with "producing of precious metals in its thirteen years of existence $136,035,998, and stands third on the list of gold and silver producing countries, California and Nevada leading. The figures for Montana are unquestionably less by at least one-half than they should be. Alder gulch alone has turned out over $100,000,000 in gold dust, and Last Chance and Confederate have each done equally well."

Colorado is having its share of tribulations just now in the way of defamation of character. A Lieut. McIntyre in the Boston Traveler and Russell Errett in a Pittsburg paper have been making allegations pretty nearly as depreciatory of Colorado as General Hazen's were of the Northern Pacific country. But Errett and McIntyre are or have been in Colorado, and Hazen was not on the territory he condemned. It's hard to please everybody. One old growler, you know, is recorded as having complained because a rose-leaf was doubled under him.

The Corinne Mail of March 18th says: "Snow slides with loss of life are becoming fearfully prevalent. In Logan canyon, yesterday morning, Ezra J. Clark and his two sons, Justus and Cyrus, were caught in one, and Justus was killed; the others escaped uninjured. In Bingham, at 4 A. M. yesterday, at the head of Carr Fork, four men were buried. G. Smith, F. Keyser, Larry Nowman and Frank Lenny all escaped serious injury, except Nowman, who, when found, was dead. In Alta, yesterday morning, an avalanche came down from the mountains, wrecking several houses, and killing John Strong and wife. Several others were buried but were rescued uninjured. Slides are occurring in all parts of the canyon, and the miners are leaving their labors and repairing to Alta for safety."

The Walla Walla Union is pleased to learn that the prospect of the fruit crop in that section this year is better than was expected. It was supposed that the crop of fruit of all kinds had been greatly damaged, if not entirely destroyed for this year, and that all the peach trees and some others were killed. But as the fruit buds begin to burst, it is found that the prospect for a good crop of apples, pears and plums is very good. In fact, in some orchards, the present indications are that the crop will be at least average. It is generally supposed that peaches will be very scarce, but it is found that many of the peach trees are coming to life and beginning to put out their leaf buds. And it is encouraging now know that if we are to have no peaches the trees are still left for another year—still it is doubtless true that many of the trees are killed.

OUR SALEM LETTER.

SALEM, April 19, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The April showers with which we were favored yesterday did a great amount of good, as the soil was in need of the same.

On Friday evening Mr. Nesbitt, accompanied by Mrs. Nesbitt and a blind young lady, went out riding; the seat fell out of the light spring wagon in which they were riding, and precipitated them violently to the ground, fatally injuring Mrs. Nesbitt, who died last evening (Sunday). Mrs. Nesbitt was the mother of Miss Nellie Simpson (who is blind) and the teacher of the State Blind Institute, and her death will be a very severe loss, as she was devotedly attached to her unfortunate daughter and the main-stay of the nucleus of one of the most important State institutions.

This evening Mrs. Mattie Caylord delivered a lecture on "Our Girls, and what shall we do with them?" The lady is evidently a lady of culture and is a good speaker. The lecture was well attended, and very well received. After the lecture there was a spelling match between the different schools, which caused considerable juvenile excitement.

The secretary of the State Agricultural Society has issued the premium list, rules and regulations of that institution; it makes a neat pamphlet of about 100 pages. He has also about finished the pamphlet of proceedings of the Pioneer Association, which will contain about a hundred pages. One of the most interesting articles in the publication will be an article entitled "The History of the Provisional Government," by Hon. J. Quinn Thornton, and will be read with deep interest by all, especially those who wish to acquire a knowledge of the early history and trials of the pioneers of Oregon. '47.

THE SPELLING SCHOOL.

His name was Ephraim Blodgett; not specially renowned,
Except as champion speller, in all the country round.
Orthographical sciptants were apt to fare quite sorely
At any spelling match where they encountered Ephraim.
The spelling-book, he had, by heart, and eke the dictionary;
And science, at his tongue's end, laid its queer vocabulary.
The dubious monosyllable he'd floor with perfect ease,
And cut through words sesquipedal like lightning through a cheese.
You couldn't weave a spell, with any common alphabet,
By which to capture Ephraim, or put him in a sweat.
And his admirers frequently remarked of Ephe, that he Could spell the China glyphics off from a chest of tea.
The people ceased to find, in spelling schools, their wonted fun.
What show was there against this orthographic gatling-gun,
That mowed down all before it, with a rattling fusillade
Of consonants and vowels punctiliously arrayed?
Just at the culmination of Ephraim's renown
He took part in a spelling school in an adjoining town.
Full soon the sole survivors of that orthographic war
Were Ephraim and a school-girl, his sole competitor.
With equal ardor, twixt these two, raged the uncertain fight.
Where victory might perch, at last, was quite indefinite.
With equal nerve they came to time, and accurate ly placed
The insidious silent letter, and the diphthong, Janus-faced.
In vain the weird and mystic spells upon that girl were cast.
The cabalistic letters dropped from her lips so fast.
Vain likewise for a long time was the effort to suppress
Ephe's "dry tongue that syllabled" tough words with such success.
The audience was excited. "Stick to him, Sis!" some cried,
And "Go it Ephe!" his partisans defiantly replied.
But Ephraim was the hero of a hundred spelling-schools,
And, on the whole, his prestige made him favorite in the pools.
In fact, though, they were laying for Ephraim. He got
The word, at last, that dropped him as if he had been shot.
The word that choked the Welshman when mortar from a trowel
Confused his tongue at Babel. A word without a vowel.
An ashen hue crept o'er his face when Ephraim heard the spell:
"D-m-n-k-g-m-c-k-ll."
"Spell-bound upon a ragged edge of consonants!" gasped Ephe
They buried him with his spelling-book and a feeling of relief.

COLD IN COLORADA—A STORY TO BE TAKEN CAUTIOUSLY.

The Fort Wayne Sentinel has been interviewing a gentleman from Colorado in regard to the cold weather there, and the following incident by "Lone Bill," the Colorado gentleman mentioned, is the result:

"One night Scarred Pete, the biggest man and best euchre-player in Helena, was beanin' all the boys at the game and gittin' away with their stumpage like lightnin'. It 'id 'e'm up awful cold that afternoon. Ther' warn't no thermometer, an' we couldn't tell how low she'd got. But tho' we'd a red-hot fire in the stove, and all sot around her, our breath friz right up, and we had to knock off the icicles from our mouths every few minutes. The handle on the ace of clubs cracked and fell off, and no one would touch a spade cos 'twas so cold. Well, Scarred Pete held two bowers an' three kings. 'Long Jim had three aces, a queen and the 'little joker.' Scarred Pete put down his right. 'Long Jim followed with his 'joker.' Scarred Pete took an ace with the left. 'Long Jim gobbled up two kings with two aces. Pete swore no man ever before played it so 'low' on him, and he'd be d——d if he'd stay rounded on. Jim hadn't stocked the keards. Then there was fine the meanest little row I ever seen. Pete got Jim down, and afore a minute their breaths had friz tighter'n a vice. The boys saw it was all up with both on 'em if they weren't got free. You see there wasn't no water nor nothin' to thaw 'em out'n that, so they pulled Jim and Pete 'longside the stuv. T'want no use. They'd friz so tight that hot pitch wouldn't melt 'em.

"We had to let 'em lie thar all that night. You see everything was friz up; no axes nor nothin' to chop the ice off. Next day they staid thar, and next night. Yes, stranger, for three days and nights Pete and Jim were friz together. They stuck closer'n brothers, now you may bet your bottom dollar. The fourth day it begun to grow a little warmer, and by night the weather was tol'able. We also sot round playin' keards, an' me an' Ugly Sam had just begun to get in some big licks—me'n Sam was pards, you know.

"All of a suddink like, we heard an awful crash. I looked round, an' condemn my picter, of them two 'Yahoos on the floor hadn't thawed out. Yes, sir, and thar they were a-lowin' and punchin' and gougin' just where they'd left off afore they'd friz together. By that time we'd all warmed up to it and there was a neat little fuss. Well, stranger, an' I'm a tellin' you fax, knives was used party lively. But 'durn'd if 'twan't, so cold no one could draw blood. After an hour or so the fun let up. Jim and Pete got onto their feet, looken as fresh as roses. Hadn't made no more impression on themselves than a flea hittin' against a barn-door. Well, that party broke up 'bout morning. We didn't think anything of it till a day or two after. Then she began to thaw, an' stranger, there was the awfullest time you ever heerd on. Them as got cut in the little muss in the store began to bleed like stuck hogs. Fact, I bled more'n a gallon, and thought I'd have to hand in my checks. But all but one feller got fixed up and did purty well. Scarred Pete and Long Jim was purty well tuckered out though. You see when she got warm, why we began to sort o' thaw out; and the jabs and cuts we got that night began to tell on us, and the bigger the cut the more we bled. Now, stranger, that was only one of the effects of that little cold snap, 'twasn't nothin' to what happened afterward!"

Here Lone Bill began to move uneasily about. Noticing that we watched him rather curiously, he remarked: "You see, soon as I git a trifle warm I feel uneasy like and smart, an' have to light out into the air. This climate don't suit 'nactly, an' I'm goin' to strike for old Montany again. 'I cum down har in Injiany to see 'bout some people, sort of relatives like. 'I tried to get 'em to come out o' this—pull up stakes and go whar a man can breathe easy."

Saying this, Lone Bill spat with amazing accuracy at a nail-head on the wall, and, wiping his mouth with the coat-tail of his linen duster, turned his melancholy face and No. 14 boots toward the door.

Halting with his brawny hand on the door-knob, he hesitatingly said: "If you should prent anything I've sed, an', if you've got room, just say that Lone Bill will swar to anything he's said. I'm home I'm sometimes known as the 'catamount,' an' no man don't call me a liar twic't."

We hastened to assure him that we supposed him to be truth embodied, and that any man who could dispute his word was no better than he should be, and a horse-thief into the bargain.

A WORKING WIDOW.—The Houston (Miss.) Messenger has the following notice of a genuine working widow in Chickasaw county, in that State: "Mrs. Mary Ann Thrift, a widow, living seven miles northwest of Houston, informed us the other day that she made all the shoes for her father's family, consisting of eight or ten persons, and that not one of them had spent a single dime for shoes or boots in five years. She also makes a good hand at cooking, washing, sewing, and working in the field."

The local money market exhibits no important fluctuations, and though complaints are occasionally heard, which are, perhaps well founded, of the limited capital in general circulation, there is no serious scarcity of money available as loans upon approved commercial paper or first-class real estate securities. The produce movement is now making but little demand upon the monetary resources of the country, nor is it believed that the requirements from that direction will amount to any very considerable aggregate before another harvest. The close of the breadstuff exporting season seems likely to take place earlier than usual this year, as we hear of no preparations to load more than two or three more vessels after those now in the river have gone. The merchants here have all along for some time been making but few calls for financial accommodations, having generally so managed their business that the ability to command their own resources has saved them the trouble of calling for outside aid. Transactions in real estate have also been duller than usual in our city, and purchasers here made but a limited demand on the banks for that purpose. A few manufacturing enterprises in various parts of the State have helped to distribute the capital of the country, and contemplated and progressing improvements are also taking up a portion. These objects have all been freely supplied during the season so far on easier terms than have usually prevailed in Oregon, and yet it is not at all probable that the condition of actual stringency experienced a little over a year ago which was preceded by higher rates for money and higher prices for home products than now paid, is to be repeated. On the contrary the signs of the times, in the estimation of many good business men, betoken a revival of trade and a more prosperous condition of financial and commercial matters generally. The good winter which extended far into the spring months, has retarded business heretofore, but the symptoms of recovering are strong, and with fair crop prospects ahead, our limited manufacturing interests as prosperous as usual, and anticipated increased yield of our mines, there seems no reason in the gun prophecies and croakings which are sometimes heard in our midst. The depression in real estate causes about as much complaint in local circles as anything else, just as if these periods of dullness had not occurred in the history of every city and in the history of Portland itself in the past. Occasionally an excitement springs up just as it did here four to six years ago, and real property was run up far above its actual value, and then comes a reaction when nobody wants to invest, and because wild land does not pay interest on money paid for it while the furore lasted, the discouraged ones grumble at the result of their venture.

Granger Wheat Shipments.

A writer in the Salem Record says:

We frequently hear conjectures as to what the farmers of Lincoln, who shipped wheat from Lincoln on the ship Privateer, realized for their wheat, and the price per bushel cannot be ascertained, it being fifty-three cents per bushel.

The shippers received more than fifty-three cents per bushel when the wheat went on board the vessel in Lincoln, and we are well warranted in saying that they will realize for the wheat sacked in warehouse seventy six cents per bushel. At the time shipments was made only seventy-five cents per bushel could be had for wheat sacked in warehouse.

The liberal advance made to the shippers made them quite easy as to money, nearly as much so as if they had sold outright at the current rate at the time they shipped, and without which advance many would have been hard pushed at that time.

Domestic Produce.

The market in this department of trade shows a fair degree of activity in minor articles, but there is lack of animation in the breadstuffs market, which affords shippers more leisure than they have been accustomed to. Under a want of advices from Liverpool and a report of no change in San Francisco, our home market shows about as at last report, wheat quotable nominally at $1 30 per cental; flour $4 50 per barrel.

Provisions are steady and in fair demand, butter of choice quality being very scarce; eggs have declined to 18 cents per dozen. Beef cattle are weaker in price, and some fair lots are reported offering for 5@5½ cents per lb on foot.

Shipping Intelligence.

The Hawaiian bark Mattie Macleay arrived at Honolulu March 4, and was loading for Portland at last advices. She will bring an invoice of desirable sugars for this trade to her owners—Messrs. Corbitt & Macleay.

The barkentine J. A. Falkinburg, from Honolulu with a cargo of sugars, etc., consigned to Messrs Allen & Lewis, is about due here.

The British ship Elizabeth Dougall will be loaded for Cork, by Messrs. Corbitt & Macleay. Her cargo of wheat is secured, and she will have quick dispatch. She is reported in the river and will arrive here to-night or to-morrow.

The steamship Orilamme, due from San Francisco, had not arrived at a late hour this evening.

The time of the sailing of the Telfair for Victoria is postponed until next Monday, so that she may convey the steamboat E. N. Cooke, which is going up to be placed on the Skeena river.

The tug Ben Holladay started down the river this morning with the schooner Superior in tow. The Superior will be left at Martin's Bluff to load with staves and boards, and the tug will then take the Rival in tow from Rainier—that vessel having completed loading—and go to Astoria with her.

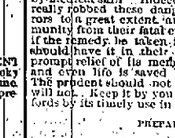
Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lung, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.



The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words, among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no other is so long cured so wide a reputation, or maintained it so long as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long continued series of marvellous cures that have won for it a confidence in its virtues, never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of Coughs, Colds, Consumption, than can be made by medical skill. Indeed the Cherry Pectoral has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well founded if the remedy be taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and expense may be saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR,

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY & COLOR

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to fall prematurely.

Ayer's Hair Vigor, by long and extensive use has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often restores the growth, and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thin brushy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

For ladies using for ladies' hair, the Vigor is pronounced by its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.
